ARMENIAN, REFUSED PASSPORT TO U. S., KILLS J. T. MARRINER IN BEIRUT IN EARLY MORNING

Brilliant Diplomat Shot Down While On Way to Office in His Automobile; Mob Beats Attacker After Capture

BEIRUT, Syria, Oct. 12—(UP)—J. Theodore Marriner, 45, American consul general and a brilliant member of the United States diplomatic service, was assassinated today by an Armenian to whom the consulate general had refused a passport.

The assassin was held on a murder charge. Police said there had been several cases of insanity in his family. Marriner was driving in his motorcar through a narrow crooked street of the ancient city when the Armenian fired from a doorway with a revolver. Marriner died almost instantly.

The consul general's chauffeur, leaping from the car, caught the assassin. Persons nearby, recovering from their momentary astonishment, ran to the chauffeur's aid and the assassin was beaten severely before police arrived to rescue him and take him to prison.

CHILD, 4, MOVES PIANO TO REGAIN HIS MARBLE

A feat of strength accomplished by Phillip Heise, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Heise, E. Main street, has his parents puzzled.

One of Phillip's marbles rolled back of a studio piano. When his parents failed to move the instrument to remove the marble, the child started the moving job. By pushing and tugging he managed to move the piano far enough to find the marble. The piano rollers rested on a rug with a pad under it. The parents said moving the instrument was a difficult task for an adult.

NINE JAP PLANES DROP BOMBS ON CHINESE CAPITAL

NANKING, Oct. 12—(UP)—The most spectacular air battle of the Chinese-Japanese war took place over Nanking today.

Nine Japanese bombers, heavily laden with bombs, swept over the city three times and unloaded their cargoes. They were escorted by three pursuit ships.

The planes dropped about 60 heavy bombs in the direction of the Chinese military airbase. Full extent of the damage could not be learned immediately.

Chinese planes took off and engaged the Japanese pursuit ships in spectacular fighting north and south of the city.

One Japanese plane went down in flames.

It was the second air attack on Nanking during the day.

SUSPECT IN GOOD HOPE BANK THEFT DIES IN ASHLAND

WASHINGTON C. H., Oct. 12—One of three men who allegedly robbed the Good Hope bank of $313 on Sept. 14 was killed in a gun battle with a police officer in Ashland, Ky., last Friday night. The bandit was not identified until several days later.

The dead bandit has been identified as William Roby, alias Jack Bennett. Four companions of the dead bandit, arrested at the time of the gun battle, will be viewed by Sheriff W. H. Icenhower, Miss Effie Palmer, cashier of the bank, and others who saw the trio at Good Hope with a view to bringing back those connected with the hold-up.

Patrolman James Lane, 32, was killed in the battle with Roby. He was shot in the chest but fired six bullets into the body of the bandit before he collapsed and died a short time later.

Fourteen women are employed repairing books for the county schools. To date more than 5,000 books have been repaired.

Workers on the various projects for women had sufficient time in Monday for the pay period and operations were suspended until Thursday morning.

W. P. A. officials said arrangements are being worked out to resume work on the Logan Elm park project, Oct. 15. Various improvements to the buildings and grounds are to be completed.

The stove had no smoke pipe and the blaze ignited the garage. Firemen estimated the damage at $10.

Sharp, Haslop Quit to Take New State Jobs; Governor Seeking Confidence

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12—(UP)—Gov. Martin L. Davey today continued reorganization of the state parole board by appointing N. Craig McBride of Hillsboro and Frank Sotak of Cleveland to the board.

McBride, a former common pleas judge, was appointed in place of Charles Sharp of Ravenna, a Democrat. Sotak was named to succeed Charles Haslop of Newark, a Republican appointed two years ago by Gov. Davey.

Both Sharp and Haslop resigned at the request of the governor, who said reorganization of the parole system was necessary to restore public confidence. The governor said that Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy had found nothing in his investigation of the parole board reflecting on the integrity of either Sharp or Haslop.

Dougan Dismissed

Previously, the governor had dismissed Leland S. Dougan, chairman of the board on recommendation of the attorney general.

Judge H. W. Jewell of Delaware was appointed to succeed Dougan.

Reverdy Ransom, negro, Democratic member of the board, is the only old member. The board will meet Friday to elect a chairman.

Judge Jewell's term will expire in August 1941; Ransom's term will expire in August 1940; Sotak's term will expire in August 1939, and McBride's term will expire next August. Board members receive $6,000 a year.

Sharp was named to the newly created job of Supervisor of Institutions under the welfare department. Haslop was named to head the consolidated Division of Probation and Parole and the investigators which have been employed by the board. Each will receive $5,000 a year.

Sotak headed the all Nations Republican league of Cuyahoga county in the last state campaign, and toward the end denounced John W. Bricker, the Republican candidate for governor, and swung his support to Governor Davey.

Josephus C. Anderson, 91, widely known Jackson township resident, died at his home about 7:15 a. m. Tuesday following a long illness of complications.

Mr. Anderson was born May 25, 1846, in Pickaway county, the son of John H. and Rachel Spangler Anderson. His wife preceded him in death. He was a lifelong resident of the county.

Surviving are one brother, J. Frank Anderson, Jackson township, and one sister, Mrs. Martha J. Fetherolf, of Lancaster.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 10:30 a. m. in the M. S. Rinehart funeral home. Burial will be in the mausoleum in Reber Hill cemetery.

State Without Funds For Route 22-104 Light

There is little possibility of a traffic light being installed at the dangerous intersection of Routes 22 and 104, west of Circleville, this year, the county commissioners were informed Monday.

The commissioners and other county officials recently sent a petition to the state highway department asking that a traffic light be installed to check the series of accidents at the crossing.

"Please be advised that no additional funds are available for the purchase and installation of traffic signals during the remainder of the present year," a letter from Harry E. Neal, traffic engineer of the department, explained.

"We will be very pleased, however, to conduct a thorough investigation of physical features, and to conduct a two-day traffic survey in order to obtain factual data which will enable us to determine the most feasible method of controlling traffic."

JAP WARPLANES FIRE AT BRITISH EMBASSY PARTY

Occupants of Three Motor Cars Unhurt in Another Shanghai Incident

CONSULATE INFORMED

Flight Lieutenant's Foot Struck By Bullet

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12—(UP)—Three British embassy motor cars, flying the Union Jack, were attacked today by airplanes on the road from Nanking to Shanghai, where less than six weeks ago an airplane attack on the British ambassador to China caused a British-Japanese crisis.

Members of the embassy party said that the planes were Japanese. Arriving here they went at once into emergency conference with other embassy and consulate general officials—and, in token of their conviction that the planes were Japanese, notified the Japanese consulate general of the attack.

Incident Serious

Though none of the party was wounded, it was realized at once that the incident was a dangerous one diplomatically and embassy officials refused all requests for statements. They said they would make no statement before tomorrow, but began at once to send urgent official dispatches.

Mayor O. K. Yul of Shanghai asserted that six airplanes were involved in the attack.

He said that he had received an (Continued on Page Eight)

Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Merriman, N. Court street, are recovering from injuries received in an auto collision on Route 188, near Cedar Hill, Sunday.

Mrs. Merriman suffered several fractured ribs, possible fracture of the left leg below the knee, some teeth loosened, and cuts and bruises. Their son, Neal, 14, escaped injury.

The Merriman car and the auto of Russell Hammitt, of Coatesville, Pa., collided. Mr. Hammitt and a small son suffered cuts and bruises.

The Albaugh ambulance was called on Route 22 near the county home, Monday afternoon, when a car overturned. The car, reported to have been driven by a Texas resident, was rolled back on its wheels, and was driven away. No one was hurt.

INCOME OF OHIO FARMERS HIGHER THAN 1936 MARK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(UP)—Ohio farm income reached $210,000,000 in the first eight months of 1937, compared with $180,000,000 for the same period in 1936, the Department of Agriculture announced today.

Income for comparable periods in other years was $122,000,000 in 1934, and $169,000,000 in 1935.

The income for this year included $151,187,000 from livestock and livestock products, and $59,196,000 from crops. Only states with greater farm income than Ohio were California, Iowa, Texas, Kansas and Illinois.

Ohio's greatest gains were made in the fruit crop. The 12,000,000 bushel apple crop is four times greater than in 1936; the 905,000 bushel pear crop is twice as large, and the 1,296,000 bushel peach crop is eight times that of 1936. There are 34,000 tons of grapes, a third more than last year.

FARMERS MAY END WHEAT SOWING BEFORE BIG SHOW

If weather conditions remain favorable, Pickaway county farmers will have all wheat sowing finished before the Pumpkin Show opens, F. K. Blair, county extension agent, said Tuesday.

A large part of the farmers have completed wheat seeding, Mr. Blair said, and those who have not finished plan to complete the work this week.

PICKETS WATCH FORD FACTORY IN KANSAS CITY, MO.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12—(UP)—The Ford assembly plant was closed today and surrounded by pickets from the United Automobile Workers Union, in what union officials described as a "lockout strike."

Baron H. De Louis, president of the U. A. W. A. local, said the company had "locked out" the workers in hopes of forcing them into a company union, and that he had obtained permission from Richard T. Frankenstein, assistant president of the national U. A. W. A. to call a lockout strike and enforce it with pickets.

H. C. Doss, manager of the plant, said: "The present plans of the Ford shops are indefinite. At the present time, we are closed."

The plant normally employs about 3,000 men but a seasonal shutdown occurred September 15, in order to prepare for the 1938 models. About 120 maintenance men had been on duty.

JOHN DRESBACH, COUNTY NATIVE, VICTIM OF AUTO

Resident of Chillicothe Hit By Columbus Man's Car Monday Evening

WOMAN'S LEG BROKEN

Former Pickaway Township Man Dies in Hospital

John S. Dresbach, 58, of 181 E. Second street, Chillicothe, a native of Pickaway county, died in Chillicothe hospital Monday night of injuries received in an auto-pedestrian accident on Paint street.

Mr. Dresbach had been a salesman for the Lynch Motor Co. for the last 10 years. Before going to Chillicothe he operated a farm near Thatcher.

Mr. Dresbach and a friend, Miss Opal Barnes, of Chillicothe, were crossing the street when struck by an auto reported to have been driven by T. R. Walker, of 182 N. Yale avenue, Columbus. Mr. Walker is associated with the Columbus Heating and Ventilating Co.

Both Legs Broken

Mr. Dresbach suffered fractures of both legs, broken right arm, cut across the back of the right hand, fractured collarbone, and it was believed his lungs were punctured. The accident occurred about 8:15 p. m. He died at 11:25.

Miss Barnes suffered a broken right leg below the knee, cuts and bruises.

Mr. Dresbach, the third victim of traffic accidents in Chillicothe this year, was born May 20, 1879, in Pickaway county east of Circleville. He was the son of James Addison and Mary Elizabeth Alexander Dresbach.

Funeral services have not been completed pending the arrival of two daughters, Mrs. Franklin Maillard and Mrs. Frank Lewis, of Bridgeport, Conn.

BRADY OR BIRD BANDITS BLAMED FOR CONN DEATH

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12—(UP)—Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the Ohio Highway Patrol, said today he was "almost positive" the slaying of Highway Patrolman George A. Conn, 28, on Sept. 27 was the work of either the Byrd gang or the Brady gang.

Al Brady, 31, leader of the Brady gang and his lieutenant, Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., 22, were killed in ambush by G-men in Bangor, Me., today.

The Byrd gang, which escaped from a Cleveland jail several weeks ago, is still at liberty.

"It was our first thought that either of these two gangs killed Conn near Freeport," Black said.

"They were the only two gangs desperate or ruthless enough to commit such crime."

SHERIFF PLEASED BY "LIQUIDATION" OF BRADY'S GANG

Sheriff Charles Radcliff expressed relief, Tuesday, after he learned that Al Brady and one of his gang aides were killed and the third was captured in Bangor, Maine. "We have been watching for that gang for a long while," the sheriff said.

Pickaway county officials, federal men, and state highway patrolmen have been watching central Ohio for many months for traces of the outlaws.

At least one of the Brady gangsters was employed in Circleville not longer than two years ago.

PRISON CHAPLAIN DIES

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12—(UP)—Rev. Thomas O. Reed, Ohio penitentiary chaplain for 16 years, died last night after an illness of six months.

G-MEN TRAP GANGSTERS IN BANGOR

Clarence Shaffer, 22, Dies With His Chief; Federal Man Near Death

TIP LEADS TO FIGHT

Crowds Flee Bullets In Busy Maine Streets

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 12—(UP)—Two Indiana gangsters—one of them the midwest's current Public Enemy No. 1—were slain, another was captured, and a G-man was wounded severely in a main street ambush here today.

Slain were gang-leader Al Brady, 31, and his lieutenant, Clarence Lee Shaffer Jr., 22, who had been hunted by federal agents as the outstanding members of a midwest desperado mob charged with three murders and robberies with loot totaling more than $85,000.

G-man Walter Walsh, 28, of Washington, D. C., shot high in the right chest, was taken to Eastern Maine General hospital.

The man captured was James Dahover, 30, of Madison, Ind.

An early report that the slain gangsters had been henchmen of the notorious Alvin Karpis, one-time midwestern Public Enemy No. 1, was denied by Indiana State Patrolman Meredith K. Steward.

Tip Reported

Though the 10 G-men, Indiana and Maine state police who participated in the battle withheld details, it was understood that the scene was laid by a tip that Brady and Shaffer would attempt to seize ammunition at Dakin's sporting goods store on Central street this morning.

Crowds were moving along the thoroughfare enroute to work or getting an early start for Columbus Day excursions, when the Rhode Island-licensed sedan containing the two gangsters halted in front of Dakin's just before 9 a. m. (EST).

Hidden federal and state officers watched from second-story windows of the Dakin building and from nearby doorways as the pair left the car and went toward the sporting goods store.

Gunfire Exchanged

Then, from the police ambulance, came a battle of gunfire. But the firing dropped the two gangsters only after they had fired at least four shots, one of (Continued on Page Eight)

PASTURE WEEDS DISCLOSE MOWING BEING NEGLECTED

Weeds which are prominent in many Ohio pasture fields at this time of year are a reminder that farmers usually should mow pastures twice a year, in June and September, according to D. R. Dodd, specialist in agronomy, Ohio State University.

Desirable pasture grasses furnish stiff competition for the weeds early in the season but, when the livestock has eaten the good forage, the weeds find plenty of food and grow rapidly. Then, as the grass becomes thin, livestock is tempted to eat weeds and some varieties of them will cause undesirable flavors in milk.

Mr. Dodd says the twice-a-year rule for mowing is a good general practice but the actual time for mowing depends somewhat upon the variety of weeds which are present. The mower should be started at about the time the weeds start blossoming. The machine also will clip off the taller grass and encourage new growth.

Fields which are carefully handled as rotation pastures so the livestock keeps the grass grazed down to from one and one-half to five inches in height may not need mowing at all. Pastures managed in this manner tend to have a vigorous growth of grass and white clover and the weeds have trouble getting started.

Pastures in which the grass is kept at the proper height by grazing or mowing will furnish more forage and it usually has a higher nitrogen content. White clover grows best in such pastures and its presence increases the nitrogen content in the forage available for the livestock.

1,385 Drivers' Licenses Disposed of in Ashville

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Insofar as drivers' auto licenses are concerned, they cannot now be obtained in Ashville. The blanks were taken up yesterday, the time for writing them having expired. Miss Marguerite Hoover was in charge of the agency and did a fine job of it and sold exactly 1,385 licenses.

Ashville
Of Wheat Drills

When a farmer pays $275 for a wheat drill he should have a real good one and that is just what some of our neighbors are sure they have. They are these "new kind" we have been telling you about that cost nothing, the salesmen come along and give them to you for the taking and the fine part about it is they are yours to keep forever. How do we know all this?

Will Creager, up here in the country apiece, told us all about it yesterday. Said he sowed but 52 pounds of seed wheat to the acre instead of about 100 pounds, the usual amount. Others he named who have these automatic, self paying drills, are Nelson Bell, Orville and Ben Vause and besides these, there are seven others in the county. No, this is not an advertisement, have no drills to sell, but they are "different" and that is what the "news hounds" say is news.

Ashville
Real Corn Harvesting

And another good and swift farmer, we came across yesterday was our old friend Ed. Ruff in South Bloomfield territory. Had brought a load of corn here to the elevator, only a very small part of his big crop. Ed. has been for a number of days getting his corn out of the field and into market at the Purina feed mill at Circleville at a fast rate "picking" several hundred bushels a day. He now has 4,500 bushels into market with about 3,000 more to go. The average price received per bushel, has been sixty cents. He and the son have kept tab on the cost of their 115-acre corn patch production and Mr. Ruff says $150 will cover the cost. This does not include the labor bill. Corn in the local market, late yesterday afternoon was 51 cents, a drop of 4 cents. This price is where it is, because of the high moisture content, the elevator boys told us.

She is Mrs. Orren Allen and daughter Plummer who will be remembered by our older residents. Mrs. Merl Valentine, Columbus, underwent an operation at St. Francis hospital Friday and is "getting along as well as can be expected." CONNOLLY ON VALLEE CAST

Walter Connolly, the character actor; Colonel Ezra Simpson, a new kind of Hollywood commentator; and the unique team of Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou Barry head the bill of Rudy Vallee's Variety. It is next Thursday.

Walter Connolly is the star of the dramatic feature of the evening—a one act play. Colonel Ezra Simpson, who holds the title by courtesy, uses the style of a rural humorist to comment on the latest news and doings of Hollywood. His subject for the Vallee broadcast over the NBC red network at 8 p. m. (EST) is "A Little Bird Didn't Tell Me So—I Found Out for Myself." He practically guarantees some scoops for the show.

Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou continue their double-voiced way to fame and fortune, the latest comedy discovery of the Vallee Hour. Betty Lou making her first visit to Hollywood will be chiefly concerned with cinema goings-on.

Pick Out Your Type of Family And See Why You Need GAS Heat

Both Husband and Wife Are Employed

No one at home all day? Let automatic gas heat furnish a cheerful welcome for your return in the evening.

Old Folks Who Must Fire Their Own Furnace

Certainly the burden of furnace firing, climbing cellar stairs and enduring uneven temperatures should be eliminated during the sunset years of life. Automatic gas heat accomplishes this.

When there is an Invalid in the Home

Even temperatures are essential to those of lowered vitality and impaired health. Automatic gas heat keeps temperatures just right—not too hot and not too cool.

Extra Room Wanted - Perhaps a Recreation Room

By dispensing with fuel storage and cellar dirt, the extra room becomes available for other storage or recreation purposes. Gas heat makes this possible.

The Husband Is Traveling on the Road

Gas relieves the housewife of all heavy work incidental to firing an old fashioned furnace. It's almost essential when the man of the house must be away.

People Who Entertain or Go Places Frequently

If you entertain you don't want to be bothered with furnace tending or uncomfortable temperatures. If you're away frequently you want a warm house on your return. Gas heat answers this problem, too.

There is a Baby or Young Children in the Home

Babies and youngsters contract most colds and other winter ailments as a result of uneven temperatures inside the home. Automatic gas heat maintains healthful temperatures.

Families Interested in Carefree Heating of Even Temperature

Who isn't interested in clean, carefree heat of even temperature? Gas heat is the only fuel meeting these requirements and it costs less than others, all incidental expenses considered.

Studying the different types of families listed above, you'll probably see that several cases fit your family. JUDGES LEAVE PATH OPEN FOR BLACK CONTEST

Capital Believes Another
Challenge By Interested

HUGHES READS FINDINGS

Levitt, Kelly Uncertain of Their Course

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(UP)—The supreme court was believed today to have indicated a way to challenge the constitutional eligibility of Hugo L. Black to sit as one of its justices.

Legal experts expressed this belief after studying the decision of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, in which the court denied two petitions charging that the new justice was ineligible because the emoluments of that office were increased by congress while he was a member of the senate.

Lawyers pointed out that the court's reason for rejecting the pleas was that neither of the petitions had established sufficient personal interest—but "merely a general interest common to all members of the public."

May Come Up Again

Hughes' explanation, it was believed, clearly indicated that any attorney representing litigants before the court might raise the question again, and if sufficient personal interest was shown, obtain a definite ruling from the court on the justice's eligibility.

Neither of the petitioners in the Black cases decided yesterday—Albert Levitt, former assistant to the attorney general, and Patrick Henry Kelly, a Boston attorney—showed personal interest "other than that of a citizen and a member of the bar of this court," Hughes said. "That is insufficient," he added tersely.

"It is an established principle," Hughes said, "that to entitle a private individual to invoke the judicial power . . . He must show that he has sustained or is immediately in danger of sustaining a direct injury . . ."

Attorneys may also raise again the second issue on which the two denied petitions were based—that no vacancy existed to which the former senator could be appointed because retired Justice Van Devanter still is subject to call in the lower courts. Levitt and Kelly contended that Van Devanter therefore retains his title as an associate justice.

If such challenges arise, it was believed that Justice Black would step aside in cases where his eligibility had been challenged. This was a remote possibility, however, because it might result in Black having to disqualify himself in a majority of the court's cases.

Black did not participate in the consideration of the Petition affecting himself. Neither did he participate in the 300 odd requests for reviews of lower court decisions, announced yesterday.

Levitt May Continue

Levitt and Kelly were non-committal about the possibility of further action on the question. The former justice official hinted, how-

Death Mystery Stirs Oakland, Calif., Police

OAKLAND, Calif. Oct. 12—(UP)—The death of Mrs. Elizabeth King on a hotel room bed provided a possible case of murder today in which both the method and motive were lacking.

The death was announced in notes to a newspaper, signed by the name of her husband, Alvin King, a 24-year-old barber. King had vanished. Police sought him throughout the San Francisco bay area.

But the police were not sure that Mrs. King was slain. There were no marks of violence on her body.

Police Lieut. Leon Carroll and Coroner Grant D. Miller decided that death may have been caused by any one of three things: natural causes, suffocation or fright.

The Oakland Tribune withheld the texts of the notes it received, purportedly from the husband, until its edition reached the streets at 8 a. m. today. Only one was made public. It said:

"You will find my wife's body in room 39, Taft hotel, Eighteenth and Telegraph."

Message To Police

The newspaper relayed that message to the police yesterday afternoon. The police went to the hotel, smashed in the door and found the 22-year-old woman's body lying across a bed. It was partly clothed.

She had been dead about four hours. At first glance, police thought she had been strangled with a bathrobe cord, but a closer inspection of her throat disproved that. It was unmarked.

King had taken the room Monday morning. Charles Taylor, hotel manager, said Mrs. King went to the room later in the day. The couple had several violent quarrels lately that came to the attention of police, and a month ago Mrs. King had her husband arrested, saying he had threatened to shoot her.

The "death notes" were delivered to the newspaper by a cab driver, who said a man gave them to him at the Taft hotel. Included in the package were several photographs of Mrs. King, in different poses, and several notes. The newspaper announced that in one of the notes, King admitted killing his wife and also said that he planned to kill himself as soon as he ascertained for sure that she was dead.

But even the police had this information second-hand, from the newspaper, as they sought the husband, dead or alive.

One of the notes was reported to have said: "I killed my wife, Margaret, at 12:15 p. m. It is now 2:30. I am sorry but not scared. I am still alive as I want to ascertain her death before I go to meet her."

In the hotel room, police found the woman's purse on a dresser. It contained a driver's license and a bag of candy. Occupants of adjoining rooms had heard no disturbance or outcries.

Feared Husband

From their records of previous complaints Mrs. King had lived in fear of her husband and had accused him of forcing her to accompany him to hotel rooms. She complained twice that he had threatened her with a gun.

King was arrested in Merced where he worked as a barber, on Sept. 18, and charged with illegal possession of a gun. Police Sergeant William F. Garrett said King told him then: "If my wife doesn't keep from picking on me, there's going to be trouble."

"I do not know which of four legal steps I will take," he said. "It will depend on further thought and consideration of the opinion."

Kelly accused the court of "evading" the issue he and Levitt had raised.

WINTERS ENJOINED FROM GOING INTO RESTAURANT

Miss Dora Elliott, W. High street, was granted an order in common pleas court Monday restraining her former husband, O. H. Winters, from visiting her restaurant on E. Main street and her residence. The suit asks that the injunction be made permanent.

The action contends that Mr. Winters continually visits her restaurant and argues with her and molests patrons of the establishment.

ever, that he might continue the case.

"I do not know which of four legal steps I will take," he said. "It will depend on further thought and consideration of the opinion."

BRITISH WANT FRENCH BORDER OPEN, IS RUMOR

Pressure Put On Nation
To Permit Assistance
For Loyalists

IL DUCE'S STAND HIT

Patrols May Be Removed
Under New Plea

PARIS, Oct. 12—(UP)—Responsible quarters said today that the British government was exerting extreme pressure on France to open the Spanish frontier at once to permit a full flow of men and munitions to the Loyalists.

This assertion caused astonishment here as it was in almost direct conflict with previous reports. But it seemed to be a fact and to represent a definite new turn in the general European situation.

It had been evident that there was some difference of opinion between Britain and France as to the advisability of opening the frontier. Generally reports have implied that it was France that wanted to open the frontier while Britain counseled caution.

According to the information today it is actually the British government that wants immediate action in reprisal for Premier Benito Mussolini's refusal even to discuss withdrawal of foreign volunteers from the Spanish Civil war.

France and Britain seem agreed that in some manner the volunteers must be withdrawn—or rather that it must be made certain that: (1) Italy completely evacuates the Balearic islands at once; (2) That Mussolini does not send substantial reinforcements to Spain proper now or later.

Britain, according to information here, seems convinced that immediate action is necessary. It is asserted that France has been urged strongly to withdraw her border patrols opposite Spain and to declare the frontier wide open.

Humphrey Bogart, the film star, has interested himself in art, he announces rather proudly. Appearing now in Warner Bros. "Kid Galahad," at the Grand Theatre, Bogart says that he has been inspired by the boxing story to begin a collection of old pink Police Gazette covers.

4-H CLUB BOYS SET NEW MARKS WITH THEIR PIGS

Four members of Ohio 4-H pork production clubs finished their 1937 projects with records of more than one ton of pork produced from a single litter of pigs, according to W. H. Palmer, state club leader.

George Pratte, Ada, and Justin Sherman, Kenton, both from Hardin county, Folger Hunt and Crawford Curry, Mt. Pleasant Hustlers Club, Clinton county, were the boys who demonstrated how to make pigs into pork. The four litters contained 40 pigs and their combined weight at the end of the six months feeding period was 8,500 pounds, an average of 212 pounds for each pig.

The nine pigs owned by Folger Hunt consumed 9,054 pounds of feed and the cost for producing each pound of pork was 8.77 cents. Crawford Curry was able to produce a pound of pork with each 3.64 pounds of feed and his production cost was reduced to 7 cents per pound. A charge of $1.10 per bushel for corn was made in computing the cost of pork production.

Folger Hunt made a profit on his pigs of $94.06 and Crawford Curry did still better, his profit being $138.84. Walter L. Bluck, agricultural agent in Clinton county, says both records are very good and that made by Crawford Curry is exceptional, as most farmers use more than four pounds of feed to produce a pound of pork.

All four boys will receive a bronze medal from the state 4-H club department. Mr. Palmer states that 120 Ohio boys enrolled in sow and litter clubs this year but only eight tried to reach the ton-litter goal.

QUALITY AND COURTESY
WHY do customers patronize one store instead of another? Most people, offhand, would probably guess "price" or "easy credit."
Not so, says J. Gordon Ross, president of the National Retail Credit Men's Association. Price comes tenth in order of importance, and easy credit sixteenth.
Stores win patronage first for the quality of their goods, he says, and second for friendly and courteous service. High quality within any particular price range, plus good service, makes a commercial combination that can't be beaten.

PEACE FOR THE WORTHY
MUSSOLINI said a curious thing to the cheering throngs of Blackshirts who welcomed him on his return to Rome after his grand trip to Berlin. He was talking of the newly proclaimed friendship between Germany and Italy.
"The objects of this friendship," he declared, "are strict solidarity between the two revolutions (Fascist and Nazi), the rebirth of Europe and peace between peoples worthy of the name."
It is not quite clear what name peoples must be worthy of before they may be included in the Rome-Berlin peace, but it is quite clear that their idea of peace is not universal. Not the human race as a whole, but selected groups of human beings, are to enjoy the peace conferred by Mussolini and Hitler. Unworthy peoples are not assured the boon of peace.
A good teacher said, "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the sons of God." There are not many real peacemakers in the world today, and Mussolini and Hitler scarcely seem to be of the number.

THE DUKE'S CLOTHES
IN the days when the Duke of Windsor was an empire's Prince Charming, and later when he became its precedent-breaking king, many people felt sorry for the poor fellow because he was always having to dress up in costumes and uniforms peculiar to different sections of his realm. Americans could not believe he really enjoyed wearing kilts and plumes and gold braid.
Since his liberation from the thralldom of kingship, however, the Duke goes right on dressing in outfits that seem designed for fancy dress balls, not for every-day wear. Pictures show him in his goings and comings among the castles and chateaux of Austria, Hungary and France dressed like a performer in an operetta.
Perhaps Edward's motto is "When in the Tyrol dress as the Tyroleans do," and

A quarantine is all right in circumstances which demand it. To make it effective, however, it must be enforced. The folk who are quarantined generally do not like it.
A family with a scarlet fever case in its midst can be pretty tightly corked up even against its members' wishes—or several such families. The odds against them are too great for them to think of resisting.
But I have known of epidemics in considerable communities against which their neighboring communities could make their quarantine stick only by virtue of patrols armed with shotguns.
QUARANTINES
Just so with quarantines against war.
A "small" war, like Paraguay's and Bolivia's, in the Chaco, isn't so hard to keep localized.
When the disease is rampant, as in the Orient and in Spain, and threatening to spread all over, it is not so easy to deal with.
Uninfected neighbors may want the belligerents, "You are quarantined," and plaster yellow placards across international boundaries. Nevertheless it takes shotgun patrols to compel respect of these notices.
And the shotgun patrol auto-

HULL STILL SKEPTICAL
WASHINGTON—While U. S. officials were delighted with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's speech pledging Far East cooperation, behind the scenes they are still skeptical. In the past the British have made too many glowing pronouncements of hands-across-the-sea and then failed to produce the goods.

Anthony Eden, for instance, broadcast a transatlantic promise of an Anglo-American trade treaty, but when the State Department pushed a pen at him to begin negotiations, he was busy elsewhere.
Past British policy regarding the Far East has been to pat the State Department on the back, say in effect, "You're doing a great job against the Japanese, old man," and leave the USA out on a limb.
Behind the scenes during the last few weeks, Secretary Hull has been extremely irritated with the British. His irritation can be described only in his own Tennessee language.
He calls them "marble statues," says they listened to him and said absolutely nothing. He included British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay in his statutory gallery, and sometimes indulged in a good old Biblical word casting reflection on the parentage of all British diplomats.
Much as Secretary Hull was aroused by the brazen Japanese invasion of China, he was almost more aroused against the immobility of British diplomacy.
The British may have changed their tactics, but the State Department still has its fingers crossed lest the British again be edging toward their old trick of letting the United States pull their chestnuts out of the Far Eastern fire.

SUPREME COURT CAUTION
The Eight Old Men are not yet ready to have their picture taken with their new colleague, Hugo Lafayette Black.
It is the custom of the Supreme Court to pose for a group photograph whenever the membership changes. Last picture was taken five and a half years ago, when Justice Cardozo mounted the bench.
Harris and Ewing, in whose studios the pictures are taken, have asked the Chief Justice to arrange a new sitting. The Chief Justice declined to do so "at this time."
The photographers then asked Associate Justice Black if he would pose for an individual picture wearing the black robes of his new office. Justice Black thought it was complicated but profitable business to make pictures of the Supreme Court. Of all the exposures made, one must be found meeting the approval of each Justice. Proofs are sent to the full membership, and the official print must be initiated by them all.
After the picture is finally chosen and produced, prints are in great demand. Lawyers all over the country buy them to frame and hang in their offices.

so on. It may be courtesy or habit or outright preference for the fanciful. At any rate, it represents his own choice. And now let's see what he wears when he emerges from the hands of Parisian tailors.

ON ONE SIDE—OR OTHER
That is to say, a country which has to fight to protect its neutrality is fighting, as much as if it were fighting on one side or the other.
For that matter, the said neutral country is bound to be on the side of one or the other, whichever country it is trying not to side with or against.
President Roosevelt recognizes this fact absolutely.
He diagnosed the situation exactly in his recent Chicago speech, opening a new bridge between the north and south sides of the Windy City.
Parenthetically: What connection there was between the opening of that bridge and the international situation is a mystery. It was a dandy speech, anyway.
NEUTRALITY LAW FAILS
Yet this question arises: The president stated facts, but what is he going to do about them?
The neutrality law does not help him much.
It is a bungling law. It does not authorize the United States gov-

DEAD RECKONING

COPYRIGHT BY BRUCE HAMILTON, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER 25
FOR THREE WEEKS after Esther's inquest Tim made no attempt to see Alma Shepherd.
All the same, they were very happy weeks. An enormous sense of release combined with pride of achievement to produce a state of mind in which solitude became a positive blessing. To savor his freedom, to go over again and again the steps in his plan, relishing the perfect harmony between design and execution; such were his chief pleasures these days, and they became a positive obsession.
He loved retiring to his room with the secretiveness of an addict of hidden vice, and he would sit for hours alone, thinking, thinking till his sense of power grew beyond all bounds. He knew himself to be irresistible. He had dared successfully the hardest and most hazardous of human enterprises; henceforth any undertaking on which he set his heart would be ludicrously easy.
He had only to speak a word and Alma would be his. If he did not speak that word at once, if he set in his mind a definite period during which he would refrain from speaking it, that was because of his perfect balance, his cool objective understanding of how best to exploit a situation. Genius, he knew, was akin to madness, but not so with his genius. He knew better than to overreach himself.
He had laid down a definite plan with regard to Alma, and to this he would adhere to the letter, even if it now seemed to him over-melancholic and a refinement of caution. That was where his genius showed itself in its finest flower; triumphant success had not caused him to lose his head. He had done murder because it was the only logical issue from a hopeless impasse, not from blind passion or congenital depravity.
He would never kill again. The act of killing had given no pleasure, it had indeed been positively distressing, and it was beyond belief that chance would ever again lead him to the same objective necessity. Murder had made him twice the man he was, but it had served its turn and he was done with it for ever.
To the outer world news filtered through of how Tim Kennedy shut himself up for hours in his living room, presumably to brood on the tragedy that had overtaken him; and the picture presented so fitted in with that created by his public behavior that he gained deep and wide sympathy for his heroic fortitude in the face of well-nigh unbearable sorrow. For within three days of the inquest Tim was back at work, as efficient and considerate as ever, only a little more silent. He visited no one, but a few of his older friends felt there was no impropriety in visiting him, and they found that his wall of stoicism broke down before their gestures of sympathy.
"I killed her," he said to Dr. Grantley, with tears pouring down his face. "The coroner should have given a verdict of wilful murder against me. . . I had every warning, and I was criminally dilatory in having the thing taken in hand. . . To Dr. Harold Arwright, who was broken and bitterly self-reproachful, he offered consolation. "It's no use, Harold. God knows I'd be glad to shift the burden, even on to you. . . But it's I who am to blame. Only I knew what it was really like. I was blind and complacent."

When he said things like this Tim really felt the emotion he displayed. He was indeed living a double life; one of a miser receding hoarding a secret joy, another of a bereaved husband who could never forgive himself for the negligence contributing to the tragedy which had broken his life.
When at last he went to call on Alma, prefacing his visit by an abrupt telephone call from his surgery, the latter character of course prevailed. It was with no sense of hypocrisy that after five minutes of stammering common-places and a watched self-conscious avoidance of the subject of Esther's death, he suddenly abandoned the pretense and fell at her feet, to cry in heart-rending tones, "Oh, Alma, Alma, I'm so miserable. Be kind to me, my dear. I think I'm going out of my mind."
She was inevitably much moved; she took him in her arms, stroked his hair, soothed him with little whimpers and gestures. "There, Tim, dear, be brave. Don't cry, dear, it'll be better one day. I'll do all I can for you."
He looked up at her at last, with a ghost of a smile on his tear-stained face. "You're wonderful, Alma. I think you really understand. . . I don't know what made me behave so stupidly; you're the only one I could do it with. . . You know, it may sound funny, but I'm not trying to make love to you. . . I remember, when I was very small, there was a puppy I had, and it was run over by a carriage. I was heartbroken until I went to my mother, and then she held me and consoled me, and seemed to reconcile everything, even a world in which puppies were run over by carriages. . . I should have come to you sooner. I know now it's mothering I want. . . to heal me."
He sat up, and presently began to talk with more control. "I've been trying to keep away from you, of course. It seemed indecent, things being as they are, to ask you out. You know, I've almost been wishing you were old and plain, then it would have seemed possible, coming to you for help. It's not been a question of what people would think or say, it's a matter of personal loyalty. Not to do anything which would make Esther unhappy, if by any chance she is somewhere where she can know and feel. . . the same as on earth."
"Now I see I've been letting loyalty blind me, that I've been doing Esther an injustice. She would understand, too, she wasn't stupid and jealous. . . I've got to see you, Alma, often. If you bear with me, I think I can start life again. Otherwise, I shall just go downhill; not slowly. . . You will see me often, won't you, Alma?"

"Of course," She looked thoughtful. "But you know, my dear, it's not so easy. If we were to go about together a lot here, people would talk. And it's all very well saying that doesn't matter, you and I know in the long run talking people can make a place unbecomable. There's your profession, too."
Tim made a gesture of impatience. "But we used to meet, decently and openly and innocently. No one thought anything of it."
"But it's no use pretending things are the same. If we were to pick things up where we left off, people would interpret it in a different way and our old meetings, too. They wouldn't understand how far removed our friendship is—from that sort of thing. They might make the most horrible suggestions, Tim."
He looked at her with candid, serious eyes.
"You mean they'd say I deliberately killed Esther because she was a cripple and I was tired of her, and because I wanted you?"
"They might even say that, Tim."
"You know that doesn't shock me, Alma. . . I've thought of it already. I'm no fool, and it was easy enough to read between the lines of one or two things the coroner said. I dare say half the people in town are saying just that already. The first part, I mean, not about you. Thank God, they've no excuse for that. . . But you must be protected, Alma. Quietly enough I never saw it in that light."
From that point it was easy enough to accomplish his design. The concrete suggestion came from her: they should meet occasionally in London, on Saturday afternoons or Sundays, if Saturday was inconvenient, eat together, go to the theater or cinema together, go for long walks or, while the warm weather lasted, on the river. They would go to town and return in their separate cars; once lost in the metropolis they would have nothing to fear from gossip.
And thus was inaugurated what was for Tim a very happy period. Like a schoolboy near the end of the summer term, or a prisoner with the day of release approaching, he discovered a kind of relief in the restraint temporarily imposed on him. He had determined to wait a full three months before taking any step to put the relationship on a new footing.
In the meantime, he looked forward with passionate eagerness to each week-end, and when it came, savored it to the full. His desire to have Alma for his own grew apace, but he took a perverse pleasure in denying it, his mind leaping forward in delicious anticipation to the time, not far distant, when it would receive utter fulfillment.

DIET AND HEALTH
Drugs Tested, Checked, Standardized for Use
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE DAYS of nasty medicines are over. The old nauseous mixtures have given way to elegant pharmacy, so that taking medicine is even a pleasure—too much of a pleasure, perhaps, for some people.
And even more important, the days of unreliable medicine have gone. Drugs are tested and checked over and over again. They are standardized by trying them out on animals to see that they are potent—that they will do what they are supposed to do. And the modern pharmacist is a thoroughly educated, well-trained expert in elegant and accurate compounding.
The mixtures of the old physicians were curious and repulsive—scraps from the bodies of athletes, mixed with the oil with which they anointed themselves, were used as a tonic. The hair of a man torn from the cross was a remedy for fever. All kinds of strange animals were used in some of their organs or parts for medicinal agents—the hyena, crocodile, chameleon, lion, elephant, camel and hippopotamus.
Toads and snakes naturally attracted these practitioners, who were more superstitious than learned. The toad is mentioned in "Macbeth":
"Toad that under cold stone
Days and nights hath thirty-one
Sweltered venom sleeping got,"
The idea was that the best time to get the toad's venom was after it had lain dormant a month, besides the advantage of catching him napping was that he would have no time to get rid of the poisonous or medicinal principle contained in his skin.
Stories of Toads
The story was that King John was poisoned by a friar who dropped a toad in his wine, but a very curious story is that of a wicked Italian woman whose husband was dying of dropsy. He took so long about it, that she got tired and thought to hurry the process by putting a toad in his wine, so that he would drink the liquid and die. He did so, but to her astonishment and disgust, he completely recovered.
Fifty years ago that story would have been scouted as mythical, but we know now that the skin of a toad secretes a drug which has an action very like the famous heart remedy, digitalis, which was introduced into medicine as a remedy for dropsy.
In 1911, Doctors Abel and Mocht, two experts in pharmacology, secured from the dried secretion of the salivary gland of a tropical toad, bufa agria, a substance they called "bufagen". Injected into animals, it increased the tone of the heart muscle, and the strength of the heart's contraction. There is one large pharmaceutical laboratory where experiments on toad medicines have been going on for some years. As yet the drug has not been introduced into general practice, but the work done shows us that the ideas of the old-time alchemists can be revised and adapted to modern uses.

India's Women Discussed At Monday Club Meeting

Mrs. George Sharpe, of Steubenville, Tells of Life, Customs

The Monday Club met in regular session in the Library Trustees' Room, Monday evening with Mrs. G. D. Phillips, president, in the chair.

Interesting reports of the delegates to the South-East District convention in Lancaster, Oct. 5 and 6, were given by Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. A. L. Wilder, who represented the club.

After a short business session, the speaker of the evening, Mrs. George Sharpe, of Steubenville, was introduced by Miss Jeannette Rowe. Mrs. Sharpe gave a very interesting account of a recent trip to India, using as her subject, "A Woman Looks at India". She was dressed in the native costume of Indian women. Mrs. Sharpe was traveling in Africa when her tour was interrupted by Mussolini's war of conquest in Ethiopia whereupon she was detained across the Indian ocean to India.

She found the people of India hostile to her because they thought she was English, but when they learned that she was an American, they were very friendly. She was entertained in the palaces of some of the maharajahs of India and was surprised at the magnificence she found there. One palace which she visited contains the largest carpet and the largest crystal chandelier in the world. The woodwork and furniture are of teakwood and mahogany and the oriental draperies are of the finest weave.

In contrast with all this splendor, the poor people are very poor, living in huts made of mud which have neither windows nor chimneys. They are always on the verge of starvation.

She traveled by rail where there were railroads and where there were none travel was by camel or elephant. Once she had a private railroad car which her servant secured for her for 34 cents in our money. She was surprised to find that the parents of India are as kind and attentive to their children as are American parents and the Indian children are very good-natured and well-behaved. Little girls are as well-beloved as little boys.

In spite of the low status of women generally, there have been women who were signally honored in India, such as the wife of the Shah Jehan for whom the Taj Mahal was built as a tomb. Mrs. Sharpe described in detail the beautiful Taj Mahal, one of the wonders of the world. Among the outstanding women of India are the Parsee women who are especially intelligent and up to date.

Considering the strange and weird customs which prevail even among the educated people in India, it is Mrs. Sharpe's personal opinion that they have a long way to go before they can achieve a Democratic form of government, such as they desire.

GIANTS TO SEEK CENTERFIELDER, FIRST BASEMAN IN WINTER TRADES

LEIBER, CHIOZZA, M'CARTHY READY FOR NEW SUITS

Yankees to Stand Pat; Manager to Meet Col. Ruppert

TERRY SEEKS MUNGO $42,000 May Be Offered Marse Joe

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 — (UP) — When winter trade winds blow, the champion New York Giants will be in the thick of the bargaining, it was reported today.

As the 1937 World Series passed into history, it seemed certain the Giants would need additional strength if they hope to retain the National league pennant.

The chief needs are a top-notch first baseman and a center-fielder who can hit. To get them, Manager Bill Terry is expected to place Pitcher Hal Schumacher, Outfielders Wally Berger and Hank Leiber and First Baseman Johnny McCarthy on the block.

One trade that may be consummated is the exchange of Schumacher, Berger and Leiber and cash for Van Lingle Mungo, fireball pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Terry, it is believed, thinks that Mungo would be a winning pitcher with a winning club.

Good and Bad The Giant centerfield problem is acute. During the World Series, Terry used Hank Leiber and Lou Chiozza. Chiozza is a great fielder but a weak hitter. Leiber is a poor fielder but can hit.

McCarthy seems destined to go. When Sam Leslie hurt his wrist, McCarthy became the regular first baseman. Toward the last of the season his field and hitting were great, but in the last week of the season and during the series he slumped again.

The Yankees seemed certain to stand pat, with only one or two minor exceptions. If they can get another first class pitcher, they may cast off some of the reserves. Manager Joe McCarthy, who piloted the Yanks to their third championship, was reported ready for a conference with Owner Jacob Ruppert concerning a new contract. He was paid $37,500 this season and some sources say that he will sign this week a new three year contract at $42,000 annually, making him baseball's highest paid manager.

APOSTOLI, STEELE BOOKED NEW YORK, Oct. 12 — (UP) — Fred Apostoli of San Francisco and Freddie Steele of Tacoma, Wash., were matched today for a 12-round non-title fight Nov. 12 at Madison Square Garden.

M'Dowell Lists Schedule For County Cage Teams

Basketball schedule for Pickaway county schools was announced Tuesday by George D. McDowell, superintendent.

The schedule opens Nov. 12 and continues 13 weeks through Feb. 18, with the tournament starting Feb. 25. Under rules of the County Athletic committee, girls' games are to be played with the "toss in" instead of "center jump."

The complete schedule follows:

BUCK GRID TEAM TO RETURN HOME WEDNESDAY EVE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12 — (UP) — With their national championship aspirations blasted as a result of a 13 to 12 defeat at the hands of the University of Southern California, Ohio State gridgers today set a Western conference title as their goal.

Despite the heart-breaking loss to the Trojans, the spirit of the Buck players appeared exceptionally good as they passed through here on the return trip home. The squad is due to arrive in Columbus late Wednesday night.

Coach Francis A. Schmidt was still glum over the loss. He indicated that he probably would attempt to develop another place-kicker to relieve Tackles Alex Schoenbaum and Joe Aleskus of the duty. Schoenbaum and Aleskus missed the vital points after touchdowns against Southern California.

Schmidt has ordered halfback Mike Kabealo and Charley Ream to begin place-kicking drills immediately on their return to practice. Both did considerable kicking of this type when in high school.

Schmidt announced the 26 gridgers who saw action against Southern California would be excused from practice the remainder of the week and that he would devote his full time to the reserves. The regulars will begin strenuous preparations for North-western next Monday.

The Buck squad took a sight-seeing tour of the Grand Canyon yesterday.

TIGER RESERVES FACE FRANKFORT VARSITY ELEVEN

Circleville high school football reserves will play Frankfort's varsity gridgers Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the local field.

The game is the first of several arranged for the reserve squad. Just who Coach Jack Landrum will use is uncertain.

The varsity squad goes to Mt. Vernon Friday evening for a scrap with one of Ohio's best football teams. The game is to start at 8 o'clock.

RUSS COHEN ILL CINCINNATI, Oct. 12 — (UP) — Russ Cohen, veteran University of Cincinnati football coach, was confined to his home here today because of a heavy cold.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 — (UP) — The White Sox picked Vernon Kennedy to win the 1937 Chicago city championship from the National League Cubs today.

The Cubs, trailing three games to two as a result of yesterday's 6 to 4 defeat, elected Larry French to keep them in the race.

Monty Stratton was credited with winning, although he had to retire in the seventh when the Cubs scored twice. Marty homered for the Cubs in the 15th.

MORE THAN ONE WAY

THERE ARE more ways than one to skin a cat. And there are also more ways than one to avoid a losing finesse. One of the nicest is to make the opponents do the job for you by luring them into a lead which could end all guess-work.

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

West was the starter of the bidding here with 1-Heart, North overcalling at 1-Spade, East showing his fit at 2-Hearts, West lifting it to 4-Hearts and North doubling. When West trumped the third round of spades, he realized that he was certain to lose one trick in diamonds and therefore could not afford a trump loser. The Q of trumps was likely to be in the North in view of the double, but of course might be held by South. Instead of guessing, West decided to attempt to deceive the opponents. He led the diamond J to the fourth trick. This made it look to North as if West was getting ready to ruff out some losing diamonds. In order to prevent that he came in with the A and led trumps at once, to cut down ruffs. As the most cursory examination of the hands will disclose, this solved West's problem, with no necessity of guessing.

EIGHT DRUM CORPS ACCEPT INVITATIONS TO PUMPKIN SHOW COMPETITION

DIRECTORS TALK OF DETAILS FOR HUGE FESTIVAL

Two Columbus Units to Seek Prize Money In Competition

KRINN'S ACTS READY

Location of Saddle Horse Competition Uncertain

Eight drum corps have accepted invitations to date to participate in the contest to be staged on the Thursday night of Pumpkin Show, E. C. Ebert, chairman of the contest, informed show directors Monday night.

Mr. Ebert believes that at least four more corps will take part in the event. The drum corps parade and contest will be held at 8 o'clock. Regulations established by the state American Legion drum corps committee will be followed in judging.

First prize in the contest will be $100, second $50, and third $25. Directors corrected the first prize in the premium book, incorrectly listed as $75.

Mr. Ebert announced that Blocc and Camp Chase posts of Columbus, will participate. Others are Ironton, Athens, Nelsonville, Wellston, Bremen, and Lancaster. The contest is open to posts of both the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Reviewing Stand Needed

A reviewing stand will be needed for the contest, but so far directors are uncertain of the location. They believed a large decorated truck could be used. It could be easily moved to a suitable place in the downtown district, then removed. Mr. Ebert suggested that the reviewing stand be placed at Court and Main streets. Directors feared the crowd would be so heavy at the intersection it would be difficult to judge the contest. The suggestion was made also that the state highway patrol's booth in front of the city building be erected strong enough for a reviewing platform on top. Suggestions were made that balconies on downtown buildings be used.

Directors decided to settle the reviewing stand proposition at their next meeting on Monday at 7:30 p. m. Appropriations to the various departments will be made at that time.

Practically all directors reported that their departments were "all set" for the event and their only needs were plenty of entries. E. E. Wolf, director of the horse show, said plans are not definitely set for the location of the saddle horse show. Since the board of education has refused to permit the use of the high school athletic field, officials are considering the use of a lot across from the Corwin street school, owned by Ben Gordon. There has been no decision made concerning the site.

Rain insurance was discussed by show officials, but they did not favor the investment.

T. D. Krinn, director of show amusements, declared that the last of his four free acts would be under contract Tuesday. Richie's Water Circus, including four persons in fancy and high diving, will show at Main and Pickaway streets. Due to the size of the equipment needed for this act the intersection will be closed to traffic. A. E. Seldon, known as the Stratosphere Man, will show at Court and High streets. Mr. Seldon has appeared here before and his act received high praise. The Rapa Islanders, an Hawaiian quintet, will play, sing dance on the platform on W. Main street at Scioto street. The act in front of the courthouse will be a roller skating and hoop rolling feature by the Smith Troupe.

"Weedy Bros., who have appeared here in previous years, are under contract to furnish music during the celebration.

official telephone message from the British embassy asserting that the attacking planes were Japanese. One of the British embassy party was Flight Lieut. S. S. Murray. A bullet nearly hit Murray's foot while those in the cars were running to fields to escape the attack.

H. M. Braham, a member of the consular staff, also was in the party.

Braham said that the embassy cars left Nanking at 4:10 a. m. The drive was uneventful, he said, until, as the car neared Shanghai, at the village of Minghong not far from the Lungwa airdrome, the planes appeared.

Suspecting an attack, Braham said, all members of the party left the cars and scattered to fields alongside the road.

Marriner became charge d'affaires in Switzerland and acting head of an important disarmament sub-committee. He went to Paris as a member of the United States delegation for the signing of the Briand-Kellogg anti-war pact in 1928.

Returning to Washington, Marriner headed the important Western European division. During the time he spent there, 1927 to 1931, he went to Paris for the signature of the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact and again, to London, as a delegate to the 1930 London naval conference.

In 1931 Marriner was made counselor of the embassy at Paris. When American Ambassador Walter E. Edge retired in 1933, Marriner became charge d'affaires, the youngest man since Monroe was minister to Paris in the days before the United States was big enough to enjoy embassy status. From the embassy, he accompanied the then French Premier, Foreign Minister Pierre Laval to Washington to talk war debts with President Hoover.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(UP)—Al Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., have been hunted by G-men as leaders of a midwest desperado gang charged with three murders and robberies with loot totaling more than $85,000.

G-men were ordered into the hunt after the inter-state operations of the gang were disclosed. The search had its political ramifications when Matt Leach, director of Indiana state police, relinquished his post as a result of friction between state and federal officers over the Brady hunt.

Among the crimes attributed to the gang were the $35,000 robbery of a Lima, Ohio, jewelry store, the hold-up of the Goodland, Ind., state bank, the slaying of a

Early this year a new drive to capture the gangsters was launched after the Goodland holdup. Indiana state police established a blockade in an effort to trip the gunmen. Indiana State Policeman Paul V. Minneman and Deputy Sheriff Elmer Craig of Monticello, Ind., sighted the bandit car within the blockade and gave chase.

Suddenly the gunmen turned on them and opened fire. Minneman was fatally wounded and Craig received critical injuries but recovered.
